

ACTIVE LEARNING ENVIRONMENTS

libraries

Flexible spaces that blend students' access to technology, to each other, and to quiet study.

classrooms

Creative spaces that incorporate the many ways today's students listen, contribute, and learn.

residence & dining halls

Multi-purpose spaces where students can dine, talk, meet, or just get a change of scenery.

office & administration

Work spaces for faculty and staff to share ideas with each other and to get tasks done on their own.

Active learning demands active environments.

Today, learning means so much more than sitting and listening. It's engaging in conversations and debates, trying things hands-on, and working together to take ideas further. Students are getting up and out of traditional learning spaces, bringing study and idea sharing into everyday places. We're right there to meet them, with smart, flexible furniture designed to help them socialize, learn, collaborate, and focus.
